Axis Relations To Be Retained, Says Argentina

Castillo Commits Republic To Maintenance of Neutrality Status.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 20.—"Right or wrong," Argentina will not break relations with Germany, Japan and Italy, Acting President Ramon S. Castillo told a press conference tonight.

Castillo, in an interview at his summer home in nearby Martinez, declared Argentina had not veered from her position of neutrality toward all warring nations, except the United States, which she has declared a nonbelligerent.

"Our position is final," Castillo said, "it will not undergo any change."

Ports Open to U. S.
By holding the United States nonbelligerent the government opened its ports to unlimited stays by United States warships.

The acting president's declaration came in the midst of reports that Argentina might join other American republics to put up a solid hemispheric front against the Axis as proposed at the current Pan-American conference of foreign ministers at Rio de Janeiro.

Castillo asserted that Argentina's position "is open, frank and loyal and represents, right or wrong, the opinion of the country."

Argentina's position, he said, "has been misinterpreted to the point where they say Argentina is not going to collaborate in the foreign minister's conference."

'Best for America.'
"But Argentina, which defends the thesis that it believes best for America, will collaborate," the acting president said.

By this he apparently meant collaboration on all hemisphere matters excluding a unanimous break with the Axis.

Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, chief of the Argentine delegation at Rio de Janeiro, is "carrying out instructions given him by the cabinet," the acting president declared.

RANGOON, Jan. 19.—(Delayed) (P)—Acting Premier Sir Paw Tun, smiling, elderly barrister knight whose wife is American, said in an interview today that the cabinet of the imprisoned U Saw would resign and a new one would be formed by himself. The new cabinet will devote all its energies and time to the war effort and Burma's defense, he said.

Naval Probers Hit High Profits Of Atlanta Firm, Assail Unions

Robert & Company Among Group Attacked in Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—In a double-barreled report citing "tremendous financial gains" for labor unions and "excessive and unconscionable" profits for many defense firms, the House Naval Committee demanded tonight strict profit limitation on all war contracts and government supervision over union finances.

Climax of a "ten months' investigation, the committee's majority report asserted that a "considerable" number of firms doing business with the government have begun to reap a harvest of excessive and unconscionable profits—profits in "many" cases of 50 per cent and one "as high as 247 per cent."

Japs Attack Isle Only 500 Miles From Australia

Line of Assault Now Extends 2,000 Miles to Southward.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 20.—Planes from a Japanese aircraft carrier took the war today to the island of New Britain, strategically situated nearly 500 miles north-east of the Australian mainland on the united nations' route of supply from the east.

Both bombers and fighters struck in force at the air base of Rabaul, the main city on the Australian-mandated island. Air Minister A. S. Drakeford, reporting the mid-day assault, said the meager information available indicated that some military damage was caused.

New Britain is in the Bismarck archipelago, nearly 3,500 miles east of Singapore, about 4,000 miles southwest of Honolulu and about 2,500 miles west of the U. S. Samoa Islands. The aircraft carrier may have been based on the Japanese-mandated Carolines to the north.

The attack extended by nearly 2,000 miles the Japanese line of assault on southwest Pacific islands, an assault which has been carried out methodically on bases from Sumatra, Netherlands East Indies, eastward.

Georgia Will Move Clocks Up an Hour

An adjustment of opening and closing hours for Atlanta schools and many businesses appeared in prospect yesterday as President Roosevelt signed into law the daylight saving time bill and set its effective date for 2 o'clock, Monday morning, February 9.

The law sets the clocks forward one hour for all governmental agencies and interstate commerce, but Washington leaders said it was assumed that the nation generally will adopt the new fast schedule in an effort to save thousands of kilowatt hours of electricity during the war-time emergency.

Governor Talmadge moved immediately to have Georgia conform with the new time and indicated a gubernatorial proclamation will be forthcoming to change Georgia time simultaneously with the rest of the nation.

Because Atlanta and the western part of Georgia went on eastern time only last year, many Atlantans yesterday asserted the new time advance will start business off in the dark each morning unless opening hours are adjusted—opening 30 minutes or an hour later than customary.

Mayor LeCraw announced a committee of council will study the matter; the Chamber of Commerce is to take it up at a board meeting Monday; A. L. Zachry, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, said his group will consider it as soon as possible; city and county school leaders are to confer on the possibility of delaying the morning opening hour of schools; and a number of large organizations were considering changing opening hours to 9 o'clock instead of 8 or 8:30 each morning.

Leaders pointed out that it is just getting light at 7 and 7:30 o'clock each morning now, and said if businesses and schools open at the usual time of 8 and 8:30

Remnants of Hitler's 100,000 Army Seen As Liable to Seizure

Invaders Thrown Back Along Road of Napoleon's Bitter Defeat in Mid-winter's Stinging Cold.

MOSCOW, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Red army has recaptured Mozhaisk in a hard-won victory which blasted the Germans from the last advanced citadel of their broken drive upon this capital and left the invader facing the prospect of a cruel, 200-mile retreat to the Dnieper.

The recapture of Mozhaisk, announced officially here tonight after a 45-day offensive, sent Adolf Hitler's legions reeling back along Napoleon's terrible road of retreat and left Orel, on the south, and Rzhev, in the north, the only remaining strong points held by the invader on the present Moscow front.

100,000 Periled.
Mozhaisk, 57 miles west of Moscow, is on the main Moscow-Smolensk-Minsk road and the Germans once were reported to have 100,000 men in the battle for that vital salient.

What remains of these forces is in danger of entrapment by Soviet armies which have driven the claws of a giant pincers to the rear of Mozhaisk in the vicinity of Vyazma, 70 miles to the west. Some prisoners already have been taken.

Even if some of the Germans do get through the narrowing gap, there are no suitable defensive positions short of Smolensk, where Hitler supposedly had established his headquarters.

There the Dnieper curves southward, affording the most likely position for a German defensive stand.

It was announced here that German casualties were heavy in the bitterly-contested battle for Mozhaisk.

Heavy Red Pressure.

The Germans captured Mozhaisk in mid-November and had been under heavy pressure since the Red army counter-offensive started December 6.

The stubborn German resistance at Mozhaisk was described by the army organ Red Star early today (Russian time) in a dispatch telling of bloody hand-to-hand fighting raging through streets crimson with flames started by the Nazis. Red Star said the entire city was afire.

Tonight's communiqué told also of the recapture of Ostashevo, described as a district center, and the village of Plensonskoye. Neither is shown on maps.

Ostashevo may be a variation of the spelling of Ostashkov, a district center in the Valdai hills on the south shore of Lake Seliger, at the head of the Volga. Ostashkov is 20 miles northwest of Selizharovo, which the Rus-

Legion Is Seen As Nucleus in Defense Setup

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—The American Legion, with 1,100,000 members and 11,780 posts in virtually every community in the country, soon may become the nucleus of the civilian defense field organization, informed press today.

National Commander Lynn U. Stambaugh, of the Legion, and James M. Landis, OGD executive officer, conferred with President Roosevelt yesterday on what was understood to be a "specific assignment" for the veterans of the first World War.

It was reported that the civilian defense office was interested in an offer to use the Legion's vast setup to expedite a national program.

60 Miles of Singapore.
The Japanese have advanced to within 60 miles of Singapore in western Malaya, where their blows were falling hard along a 30-mile sector stretching from the Muar river down to the vicinity of Batu Bahat, and on the eastern front enemy patrols penetrated to the area of Endau, about 75 miles above Singapore.

While the invader's pressure still was rising, particularly against the heroic and outnumbered Australians on the west, Japanese warplanes were in heavy action, losing over Singapore bombs which fell indiscriminately upon military and residential areas alike.

The RAF was casting out its fighter craft in offensive sweeps centered about the Muar, and British bombers were in action against enemy bases, but not even these and the presence of United States bombers striking behind the Japanese lines appeared to have overturned the invader's aerial superiority.

Japanese Claims.
(The Japanese news agency, Domei, claimed that Japanese advanced units had reached a point only 18 miles short of the causeway across Johore strait to Singapore island.

Nevertheless, present Japanese activity was described in Tokyo as that of consolidation and mopping-up in preparation for "the general offensive against the island.")

It was the region of the Muar which of all was most critical—an area where the Australians had been slowly pushed back for the last two or three days in wild fighting running an extraordinary range from artillery and tank action down to the most elemental

7'42 Hats Not Newsy, But Just as Screwy
By AMY PORTER. (Picture on Page 12.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(P)—phorescent and fascinating. Seems any fabric can be dipped in this new solution, so that your hat or any part of it glows in the dark. Then there were buttons of glass cut to reflect light like road signs. You could work out a signal system with these.

Several hats had matching defense bags—one or two huge pouches, slung over the shoulder on straps, so as to leave hands free.

Mostly hats were simply pretty or wild, and of a charm sufficient to make "your sweetheart in the armed forces" forget his troubles for a little while, at least long enough to determine whether that stuff around your neck that looks like spaghetti is spaghetti.

Spaghetti or glass straw, or woven ribbons or raffia was much in evidence, along with fringe. Feminine fluff appeared even on trim little suit hats, in streamers of tulle to be tied under the chin.

Silver Shirts' Leader Given Term in Prison

1935 Pelley Conviction Invoked by Judge in North Carolina.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 20.—(P)—William Dudley Pelley, leader of the Silver Shirts of America, was sentenced today by Superior Court Judge F. Don Phillips to serve two to three years in prison upon conviction in 1935 of violation of North Carolina security laws. Prayer for judgment had been continued when he was convicted in 1935.

Judge Phillips also directed that a sentence of one to two years, pronounced in 1935 by Judge Wilson Warlick and suspended upon conditions of good behavior, be placed into effect, the two sentences to run concurrently.

Judge Phillips immediately ordered Pelley, who has been in liberty several months, held in the county jail.

W. T. Anderson Named Georgia Salvage Chief

Barron Recommended as Executive; Defense Ordinance Okayed.

W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph, yesterday was made chairman of a newly-created state salvage committee, and David I. (Red) Barron, former Tech football star, was recommended by the Governor as executive secretary at a salary of from $3,200 to $5,000 a year, depending upon Barron's classification by the Civil Service Commission.

Other developments on the state defense front were:

1. T. M. Forbes, state rationing administrator, announced Georgia's tire quota for February was only half the January quota.

2. Fulton county commission received a request for half of a $22,285 budget for civilian defense to County Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey. The request was made by Charles J. Currie, chairman of the Atlanta committee.

New Ordinance Approved.
3. Mayor LeCraw approved a new council ordinance requiring those having custody or control of buildings, signs, or other structures where artificial illumination is used, to provide means of darkening the properties under their control immediately in case of air raid warnings.

4. Mike Benton, chief air raid warden for Fulton county, announced all Fulton county, announced would be open Friday and Saturday for registration of citizens for volunteer work in the civilian defense program.

Formation of the state salvage committee was under supervision of H. A. Wooten, executive assistant to the chief of the general salvage section of the Bureau of Industrial Conservation of the OPM.

As director of the campaign in the eight southeastern states, he is operating through state committees which seek to spur waste collections by co-operating with other civilian committees and organizations. Wooten said the objective of the drive was to get all waste material back into production channels as quickly as possible.

Materials Needed.
Such materials, he said, would include all types of metals, rubber, paper and rags. He emphasized the government wants to be selective about the campaign and not use as waste those things that can be converted to more immediate use by salvage.

For example, he said, a torn overcoat is of better service repaired than for wool scrap. The state committee will seek to direct collections so this policy is carried out.

Barron's job falls under federal civil service and he was arranging to take examination to determine his standing. He will have offices in Atlanta and expenses of his secretarial assistance and for the campaign are to be paid by the federal government, Wooten said.

Barron is to be released January 27 as head of the NYA's resident project at Monroe.

Tire Administrator Forbes, who will go to Chicago Saturday for a meeting of tire rationing officers from all over the country, said Georgia's February quota will be as follows: 2,039 tires and 1,071 tubes for passenger cars, and 4,071 tires and 6,981 tubes for trucks. This compares with January's

Out To Find Hole in Alley, Police Call Back--We're in It

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Prowl Car Patrolmen A. A. Bricker and M. E. Caldwell, sent to investigate the report of a dangerous hole in an alley, called for a wrecking car.

quota of 4,140 tires and 3,436 tubes for passenger cars and 7,900 tires and 6,871 tubes for trucks.

Fulton Tire Quotas.
Fulton county's February quota will be 444 tires and 372 tubes for passenger cars and 683 tires and 1,170 tubes for trucks.

He pointed out that "this may cause some dissatisfaction because the January quota was short, but there is nothing we can do about it."

Chairman Robert B. Troutman, of the Citizens Defense Committee, said all efforts at present should be concentrated on the registration of civilian volunteer workers starting Friday.

He said plans for training the civilian workers were progressing rapidly and would be ready for operation as soon as the registration was completed.

Clint Davis, state air raid warden director, said defense chairmen in each of the congressional districts should appoint district and local air raid chiefs quickly.

County Co-operates.
In submitting the request for half of a $22,285 budget for civilian defense, Currie was informed the county would co-operate in every possible way with the Atlanta committee and the city to insure the safety of Fulton county during the war. City Councilman James E. Jackson told the commission the city would appropriate the other half of the sum required.

Fulton county schools will be open for registration of civilian volunteers from 10 o'clock in the morning until 7:30 o'clock at night Friday and Saturday, Benton announced.

Benton added he would begin today naming district air raid wardens for every section of the county.

Mrs. William Healey, fifth district chairman of the women's division, announced the appointment of Mrs. Trammell Scott as chairman of the women's division of Fulton county; Mrs. Sally F. and board members of the American Women's Voluntary Services.

Members of the West End Business Men's Association, headed by Walter L. Richard, have begun a practical demonstration of patriotism and their loyalty to national defense.

They already have diverted their fund for building a meeting place to the purchase of defense bonds, put $300 into the pot, and have decided to invest about $100 a month in bonds for the duration of the emergency.

"We could not build now even if we wanted to," Richard said. Gleason, chairman of Rockdale county, and Mrs. Augustus M. Roan, chairman of DeKalb county, in signing the ordinance requiring means of cutting off all illuminated signs be provided, Mayor LeCraw pointed out if watchmen are not kept all night, outside switches marked in white circles at least 12 inches in diameter must be provided so wardens can cut off the lights.

Blackout Measure.
The ordinance is designed to aid in making blackouts effective, said Dewey L. Johnson, director of blackouts for the municipal defense council.

Appointment of a speakers' committee of the DeKalb County Defense Council was announced by Vernon Frank, county chairman. Judge Augustus M. Roan is chairman. Other members are David Ansley, Murphy Candler, William J. Cordes, Judge James C. Davis, Young H. Fraser, Judge Frank Guess, John T. Japanese Army Well Equipped, Expert Reveals High Percentage of War Imports Is Weak Spot in Nippon Economy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—Japan's Army was described today in a military survey of the weapons used by the western Pacific invaders as "almost a poll-parrot copy of Der Fuehrer's hordes."

In the semi-official Infantry Journal, Lieutenant John Scofield declared also that "man for man, the Jap fighters are probably as efficient as the average in Europe."

"The Army that Japan is matching against the democracies is well fed, cleanly uniformed and about as completely equipped as that of any belligerent today," he asserted.

"Much of its material is old-fashioned and of conservative design, but what it lacks in improvements is balanced by plentiful quantities. For the most part the Japs have stuck to a few consistent models and this has eased the problem of supply."

Early German Thought.
"Many Japanese weapons and more than a few Japanese concepts of how to fight a war hark back to earlier German thought. Rifles, automatic pistols and artillery, as well as the organization and tactical doctrines of the army, reflect and betray the influence of German military instructors and advisers imported before the first World War."

The favorite Japanese army rifle was said by Scofield to be the 1905 model Arisaka, also known as the Meiji 38. It fires a cartridge of only .256-caliber, which aroused the expressed contempt of some United States Army officers in the Philippines because

'Signal Progress' in Converting Corn and Wheat Into Rubber

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—Experiments are under way for the conversion of agricultural commodities, such as wheat and corn, into synthetic rubber with satisfactory results thus far, Dr. Henry G. Knight, chief of the Agriculture Department's chemistry and engineering bureau, said tonight.

"We have made signal progress at the northern regional research laboratory at Peoria, Ill.," he declared in an interview, "but not enough to make a positive statement that we can make synthetic rubber yet. The progress we have made, however, entices us to continue with the research."

The process, developed by four chemistry experts—Dr. Leo M. Christensen, of the University of Nebraska; W. K. McPherson, of Alabama Polytechnic Institute; Harry Miller, of the University of Missouri; and Dr. L. A. Underkoffler, of Iowa State College—consists of three stages, Dr. Knight said. They are:

1. A special fermentation process under which the farm commodities are made into a liquid chemical known as butylene glycol, resembling glycerine but somewhat thinner.

2. Conversion of the butylene glycol into a gas known as butadiene, which is the base of synthetic rubber.

3. Chemical transformation of the butadiene into a compound which is synthetic rubber itself.

"The first step," Dr. Knight said, "is now in the pilot plant at Peoria. The second step is still in the laboratory stage."

its range and hitting power is substantially less than that of American infantry weapons. "One of the things most difficult for the occidental mind is the emphasis placed on use of bayonets and swords by the Japanese," Scofield observed. "They consider the bayonet the most essential weapon they carry and are taught to indulge in bayonet sticking whenever they can close with the enemy."

The Nambu, 22 1-2 pound light machine gun, "the weapon that has done the heavy work in the Japanese infantry attacks in China," was said to be remarkably easy to shoot and as easy to load.

Trickiest Arm.
Scofield, associate editor of the American Rifleman, reported further as to Japanese arms: "Their 'trickiest arm' is a light simplified trench mortar or hand grenade thrower which may be handled by one or two men."

The biggest Chink in Japanese armor is war economy, since "actually Japan has imported 85 per cent of her arms," Scofield said.

Scofield noted that each soldier is paid 10 yen (about $2.36) a month, eight of which goes to his family. His personal equipment is simple. Fully supplied with ammunition and rations, he carries a load of about 60 pounds.

New Income Tax 'Short Form' Is Simple, But Be Sure It's Best One for You To Use

Financial Circumstances Alter Cases in Filing Returns for 1942.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

This is a piece about the income tax which may or may not make sense, but it tries to do two things. It tries to explain how the new "short form" works and when it is best to use it. And it also tries to show how a man and his wife, both with taxable income, may best file their returns to keep the new surtax from cutting too deeply.

The first applies only to those whose income is $3,000 a year or less, for persons earning beyond that amount may not use the short form.

It all boils down to this: If Joe Schmalz, married and father of one dependent named Joe Jr., pays more interest and taxes and contributes more heavily to charity than the average man, he wants no part of the new short form known as 1040A.

The reason is this: Form 1040A figures out Joe's taxes after making deductions based on the average deductions claimed by hundreds of thousands of guys like Joe in their tax returns over a period of years.

For instance, Joe, who makes $2,400, may have figured up his deductions as follows: Red Cross $5; state, city and county taxes, $20; interest on borrowed money, $20; total, $45.

He tells the man at the tax desk that he figures he is entitled to deductions totaling this amount and would like to file on the short form, to save himself trouble and so on.

But the man looks in a little book he has on his desk and finds that on an income of $2,400 the allowable deductions, based on an average, is only $35.42. So he tells Joe he would be better off if he filed on the standard, or long, form, in which Joe may get credit for the full $45 deduction.

On the other hand, of course, Joe may have legitimate deductions of only $25. If this is the case the man will tell Joe he will do better to file on the short form, which automatically allows him $35.42. The government, though, some may be surprised at this, doesn't want a man to pay more than the law says he must.

When To Use Long Form. There are many instances, of course, where the short form may not be the best, even if it does allow deductions a little higher than a taxpayer might be planning to file. A man who had such expenses as hotel bills, traveling expenses, meals, etc., in the earning of his income should file on the long form, so he can get credit for these expenses. A man whose income comes partly from rents should file on the long form, so he may take advantage of deductions for depreciation, taxes, repairs, etc.

No Deductions. These things cannot be placed on the short form, a point the tax people want to stress. A lot of people are filing on the short form, but are adding various deductions, not knowing that the deductions are already computed in the tax tables.

Consequently the government can't allow the deductions. They have to go back and figure the tax on the gross income, minus only the deduction for dependents, if any, and the tax payable is higher than the person filing the return figured, a situation distressing to everybody.

The surtax, which has come on down into the lower brackets this year, also complicates the matter of filing somewhat, and it might be well for a man and wife, who both have incomes, to ask the advice of the deputy collector as to how they should file. There are three choices. The husband may file on the long form and the wife on the short, jointly, or they may file separate returns on the long form. Their choice may

'Who, When, Where' of Filing

The "Who, When and Where" of filing federal income tax returns were condensed yesterday for The Constitution by the Atlanta office of the Collector of Internal Revenue.

Who must file returns: Every unmarried person with a gross income of more than $750 in 1941. Every married person, living with spouse, whose combined income in 1941 was more than $1,500.

When: Returns must be mailed not later than March 16.

Where: To the office of Internal Revenue Collector, Old Post Office building, Atlanta. Or, to offices of deputy collectors in these cities: Augusta, Columbus, Macon, Rome, Savannah, Valdosta and Albany. All these are in the post office buildings.

Payments may be made in four installments if desired. They are due March 16, June 15, September 15, December 15.

course, where the short form may not be the best, even if it does allow deductions a little higher than a taxpayer might be planning to file. A man who had such expenses as hotel bills, traveling expenses, meals, etc., in the earning of his income should file on the long form, so he can get credit for these expenses. A man whose income comes partly from rents should file on the long form, so he may take advantage of deductions for depreciation, taxes, repairs, etc.

No Deductions. These things cannot be placed on the short form, a point the tax people want to stress. A lot of people are filing on the short form, but are adding various deductions, not knowing that the deductions are already computed in the tax tables.

Consequently the government can't allow the deductions. They have to go back and figure the tax on the gross income, minus only the deduction for dependents, if any, and the tax payable is higher than the person filing the return figured, a situation distressing to everybody.

The surtax, which has come on down into the lower brackets this year, also complicates the matter of filing somewhat, and it might be well for a man and wife, who both have incomes, to ask the advice of the deputy collector as to how they should file. There are three choices. The husband may file on the long form and the wife on the short, jointly, or they may file separate returns on the long form. Their choice may make a difference of quite a few dollars in their tax.

For instance, take the case of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smith. Bill earned $3,500 last year. His wife's income was $1,000. They decide to file a joint return. This gives them a total income of $4,500, from which they can deduct the personal exemption of $1,500, leaving $3,000, which is the surtax net income, to which we will return, painfully, in a minute. Deduct their earned income credit of 10 per cent of gross income, or $450, from the $3,000. This leaves $2,550 on which the normal tax of 4 per cent is levied, or $102 normal tax. Now we go back to the $3,000, which is the surtax net income. On it is levied $120 (a set levy) plus 9 per cent of the amount over $2,000, or 9 per cent of $1,000, or $90—$90 plus $120 is $210 surtax. Add to this the $102 normal tax and you get a total of $312 in taxes Mr. and Mrs. Smith must pay when they file their return jointly.

Split Exemptions. So they decide, when they figure this out, they don't want to do it that way. They decide that Bill will file his return on the long form, and Mrs. Smith will file her $1,000 on the short form. But this way they must split the personal exemption 50-50, which gives Bill a deduction of only $750 from his gross income, or for surtax net income of $2,750. On this he pays $120, plus 9 per cent of $750, which brings the surtax to $187.50. Bill is allowed an earned income credit of 10 per cent on his gross, or $350, and this is deducted from $2,750, bringing his net income down to $2,400. The normal tax of 4 per cent is levied on this, a ing change for the state now because it is a war measure.

He said he would do whatever is necessary to have the state change over to daylight time February 9.

"In effect, we have daylight saving time here now," said W. R. Ulrich, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. "Under the new time there will be a two-hour differential, and it means probably we shall have to make adjustments in opening and closing hours, keeping business in the daytime. I am going to take the matter up at the board meeting Monday."

Zachry said he didn't think the time change was obligatory, but added that he will consult with members of the merchants' association as soon as L. L. Austin, the secretary, returns from a Chicago trip.

A spokesman for the Georgia Power Company said it has made no definite plans regarding transportation, but the company will meet demands.

Shifting of business and school opening and closing hours when the new time goes into effect may shift peak loads of the company, it was pointed out.

Estes Doremus Named Head of Catholic Group

Association of Atlanta's Laymen Meet and Elect Leaders.

Estes Doremus was elected president of the Atlanta Branch of Catholic Laymen's Association of Georgia at a recent meeting, it was announced yesterday.

Other officers elected were: Treasurer, Miss Aimee Clokey; senior vice president, Miss Mae Haverly; vice presidents from the Immaculate Conception, Gus Eppler and Mrs. Helen Zink; from the Sacred Heart church, J. J. McConaghey and Mrs. Mary Dicks; from St. Anthony's, J. I. Oberst and Miss Nell Jentzen; from Christ the King, Grover Heyser and Mrs. George Donnell; from St. Thomas More, James L. Harrison and Mrs. A. A. Baumstark.

Junior vice presidents chosen were: From Immaculate Conception, Miss Kathleen Riordan and Fritz Baumgartner; from St. Anthony's, Mrs. Tom Kehoe and Charles Joseph Campbell; from Sacred Heart, Miss Elizabeth Keiley and James O'Shea; from Cathedral of Christ the King, Miss Isabell Vretman and Joe Connolly; from St. Thomas More, Robert Andrews Jr. and Margaret May Toomey.

Doremus reported that subscriptions totaling nearly $2,500 were paid 100 per cent by members of the Atlanta branch during 1941. During the past year the local group contributed $2,950 to the state organization.

total of $96. Add $96 normal tax to $187.50 surtax and the total Bill must pay is $283.50.

While this is going on Mrs. Bill is filing her short form return, paying $18 on her $1,000 income. Thus the total they pay is $283.50 plus $18 or $301.50.

Neither way, it seems, was the best way for Mr. and Mrs. Smith to file. For instance, here's what would have happened if they had filed separate returns, both using the long form.

Straight Surtax. By agreement, Bill claimed the total personal exemption of $1,500. This brought his surtax net income down to $2,000, not subject to the $120 plus 9 per cent of the amount over $2,000. Instead he paid a straight 6 per cent surtax on $2,000, or $120. Deducting his earned income credit of $350 from $2,000 left him $1,650 to pay the normal 4 per cent tax on, or $66. Thus his total tax was $186.

Mrs. Bill gets no personal exemption from her $1,000, but she does get an earned income credit of $100. She pays 4 per cent of $900 or $36 normal tax, and 6 per cent of $900 or $54 surtax, for a total of $90.

Thus she and Bill together pay $186 plus $90 or $276 total tax, which is what they should have done in the first place, since it was $25.50 cheaper than filing on both forms, and $36 cheaper than filing jointly.

New Spirit Noted. It may be that the Joe Schmalz and the Bill Smiths this year will resent anybody trying to tell them how to ease the burden of the tax bill a little. There is a new spirit in the taxpayer this year. He is digging down with a grin. Many a deputy revenue collector, when he got down to the point about the minor deductions has been amazed to hear the man across the table tell him to go on and figure up the tax and forget about the deductions.

Marion H. Allen, internal revenue collector, said this was happening often. He said one man added $50 to his tax bill and sent it in as a gift. He wouldn't even take it back to buy a bond with it. There will be 74,000 new taxpayers this year in Georgia, Mr. Allen said. The deadline is two months away, but the tax offices are already packed. Pearl Harbor, it seems, is not being forgotten by the folks who foot the bills.

Georgia To Move Clocks Up

"clock under the new time, they will be opening just at sunup. "Everybody will have to get up and dress in the dark and more electricity will be used than is used now, unless we adjust business hours to the daylight," many said.

This, of course, would defeat the purpose of the federal daylight saving time bill—to save electricity.

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta schools, and Jere A. Wells, superintendent of the county schools, both asserted "some adjustment probably will be made" in the beginning hour for their school systems but added whatever change made will be made for the convenience of the students and parents.

Wants Reaction.

"Some of our children now have to get up before sun-up to get to school and some of our bus drivers now have to burn their headlights going to the schools," said Wells.

Sutton declared he would like to have the public's reaction and added he will consult parents and teachers on the matter.

Big stores downtown now open at 9, and their officials said at present they have no plans for changing that opening hour, since it is daylight by 8 now. Many other stores open at 8:30 now and many offices begin work at 8 o'clock—which under the new time would be in the dark until the summer months.

Situation Peculiar.

Mayor LeCraw said "many workers already have to get up in the dark and something certainly should be done about adjusting hours under the time change." He added the city hall, which now opens at 8, probably will not be opened until 9, and will stay open an hour longer in the afternoon.

Leaders consulted all were emphatic that they want to "go along" on anything necessary to the war effort, but declared Atlanta's situation is rather peculiar. The governor, who last summer refused to order daylight saving time when the power shortage was on, even though federal officials requested him to do so, said he will order the daylight time sav-

Army Officer Denies That He Criticized U. S.

Said Address Was Intended To Promote Military Interests.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 20.—(P)—Colonel H. C. Kress Muhlenberg, retiring Fifth Corps area air officer, today informed a general court martial he had no thought of criticizing the government policies or the United States Navy in an address here December 17.

Colonel Muhlenberg is being tried under the 95th and 96th articles of war, governing "conduct unbecoming an officer" and "conduct of a nature to bring discredit upon the military service."

The veteran officer, who was eligible for retirement next month, was quoted by prosecution witnesses as saying the American people were the "goats" of the Pearl Harbor attack by sanctioning a policy of "sending planes all over the world instead of where they were most needed."

Colonel Muhlenberg asserted in an unsworn statement that he addressed the Curtiss Flying Club as "an opportunity to promote the interests of the military service, especially the Air Corps, and to extend enthusiasm for the flying service among this group of young men of around 25 or 30 years of age."

"If anything I said in my enthusiasm and intensive interest in the subject be construed as a discussion of foreign and domestic policy and therefore within a ban against speaking of such matters, it certainly was not so intended as a violation, dishonorably or otherwise, of an inhibition," he said.

Price Ceiling Set On Some Fuel Oils

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—The Office of Price Administration imposed price ceilings today on bunker C and No. 6 grade fuel oil at east coast and gulf coast ports. These oils are widely used as fuel for merchant and naval ships and in some war industries.

The price schedule announcement by Price Administrator Leon Henderson followed his refusal on January 9 to permit large oil companies to increase their prices on these grades.

The maximum prices fixed are those which were effective on January 9. The schedule at various ports, with prices listed f.o.b. refiners and terminals were as follows:

Albany, N. Y., $15.5 a barrel; New York harbor, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk, Va.; Portland, Me.; Boston, Mass., and Providence, R. I., all $13.35; Charleston, S. C.; Savannah, Ga., and Jacksonville, Fla., all $13.30; Tampa, Fla., $12.5; New Orleans, La., 85 cents; other gulf coast ports not specified, 85 cents.

HAWKINSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 20. City commissioners have selected J. H. McCrary as clerk and G. N. Cobb as police chief. James Pace was elected chief of the fire department.

new measure providing for the building of 1,789 minor combatant, auxiliary and patrol vessels of various types in addition to previously authorized ship construction.

While the bill carried no specific over-all authorization, Vinson estimated the new program would cost $3,300,000,000. To get it started, the measure authorizes the Navy to spend up to $750,000,000 for equipment, facilities and land for the construction of the vessels and their ordnance.

Meanwhile a House appropriations subcommittee, with unprecedented speed, approved a $12,525,872,474 fund for new war planes, which Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, called "the largest single estimate for military equipment in the history of the nation."

"We received the request yesterday, completed hearings today, approved the recommendations and will try to get it before the House on Friday—the earliest possible moment," Cannon said. "Such expedition I've never seen."

Christenberry Post Confirmed by Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—The senate today confirmed the appointment of Herbert W. Christenberry as United States attorney at New Orleans, accepting without debate the unanimous recommendation of a judiciary subcommittee.

The Louisiana Association for Clean Government had opposed Christenberry's appointment on accusations growing out of his associations with the late Senator Huey P. Long, but the committee dismissed the charges as "based upon conclusions and inferences rather than upon fact."

ing that war was in the offing, there was also a feeling that preparedness was the keynote of life and work and all other activities.

Big Question. "Everyone wanted to know when the Americans were going to enter the war," said the glamorous Atlantan, "and Americans everywhere in Europe were asked this question. When we left Russia we went to Berlin and then to Budapest before sailing for home from Lisbon."

"Everywhere was the feeling that if America entered the war, things would be better and there would be a climax to the world situation. Germans everywhere were making more and more demands on people and there was a feeling of general unrest."

The Atlantan said that the Germans had no idea of the power and strength of the Russian Army. "This was partly due, she said, to the general impression made by Lindbergh after his visit to Moscow, when he went to Berlin and then to London and minimized the power and size of the Russian air force."

Reds Secretive. The ability of the Russians to keep a secret is one of the greatest attributes of their power and success in the present war, she said. The fact that they can do this, coupled with the fact that the movements of their far-flung Army were covered by a strict censorship is a point in their favor, she added.

Mrs. Dulaski and her son, who was born in Moscow, leave here this week for Washington, where they will join Mr. Dulaski. The latter is now attached to the State Department.

George Sends Message. Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, declared in a short-wave message to the Chinese people made public today that "developments will demonstrate that England and the United States propose to give all possible assistance, in conjunction with China, in the war in the middle and southern Pacific area."

George's message said that doubts of receiving large-scale military aid from the United Nations had been voiced by Chinese sources on the basis of "some words spoken informally by Secretary of the Navy Knox in describing the relative importance to all of the United Nations of victory over Japan and Germany."

"I come to you today, people of China," George continued, "because your doubts and fears are understandable to me, and yet are not correctly founded. When their basis is analyzed in the light of the plain facts, you will see that there is no foundation whatever for any doubt of the comradeship and fullest co-operation of your sister nation across the Pacific."

Supply Lines Called Moving Satisfactorily

China and Australia Are Given Fresh Hopes by President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—President Roosevelt assured a press conference today that the United States was contributing to the war against the Axis in almost every part of the globe.

He said he could not be specific. But he told reporters to look at a map of the world and they could assume that we were doing something there. Staff talks, he said, cover offense, defense, all the continents, every one of the seven seas, war supplies and the movement of things, ships and human beings from one part of the world to another.

Reassurance to China. The chief executive's remarks were of a type to give reassurance to China and Australia, where some uneasiness has been reported over the possibility that American supplies might go more into the battle against Hitler than into the fight against Japan.

A reporter called the President's attention to these reports and the chief executive declared that he thought nobody need have any fear at all. We are doing the best we can, he added.

The Chinese ambassador, the President asserted, fully understands the situation. As for the recent submarine attacks on shipping along the Atlantic seaboard, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that he thought there was no connection between them and the conference of American nations in Rio de Janeiro. He recalled that he had prophesied several weeks ago that subs soon would be operating along the American coast.

He answered in the negative also an inquiry whether he thought the submarine fighters were being employed in an attempt to withdraw United States vessels from the Atlantic patrol.

Replying to still another question, the President said there was no direct relationship between the sinking of tankers and the construction of additional pipe lines in this country.

The chief executive had conferred in the day with Hubertus Van Mook, lieutenant governor general of the Netherlands East Indies, who reported afterward that he was encouraged by the prospects of a real effort to move supplies and reinforcements into the Western Pacific.

Mr. Roosevelt conceded that it was correct that supplies and reinforcements were being sent, and he said excellent progress was being made. But he said that he could not go into details on this score, either.

Hurley's Mission. The President declined to reveal the nature of the mission selected for Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War for part of the Hoover administration, whom he has nominated to be a brigadier general. All he could say was that the Army was taking Hurley in.

The former secretary has a reserve commission as a colonel and served in France in the last World War.

Again on the topic of submarines in the Atlantic, Mr. Roosevelt preferred not to discuss what retaliatory steps the Navy might be taking. He was reminded that some people were asking what the Navy was doing about the submarines.

All he could do, Mr. Roosevelt said, would be to invite them into the room showing the location of every Navy ship. And obviously, he said, he could not do such a thing.

Crew of Oil Carrier Reboards Craft After Taking to Boats

Wounded Tanker Finally Zig-Zags Out of Reach of Attacking Sub After Hour of Shell-Fire, Torpedoing.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 20.—(INS)—Latest victim of the Atlantic submarine attacks, the 8,200-ton tanker Malay, limped into Norfolk harbor with a hole in its side where a torpedo struck and with severe damage from shelling. One member of the crew was killed and four are missing.

The attack upon the Malay, which was south bound in ballast, was the most vicious of any to which American shipping has been subjected during the past week in Atlantic coastal waters.

Twenty-nine survivors told of undergoing a bombardment which lasted more than an hour as the submarine commander made a determined attempt to sink the tanker by shellfire. When this failed, he fired a torpedo which struck the Malay amidships, but did not cause fatal damage.

Shell Strikes Bridge. The first shell struck the Malay on the bridge. The crew was caught entirely unprepared, as there was no warning of the impending attack. The submarine continued firing, its second shell hitting the after deck, where one of the Malay's lifeboats was set afire.

Captain John M. Dodge, of Baltimore, immediately ordered the engines stopped, and the lifeboats lowered. The boat was useless, but the crew quickly got the other boats away.

Then, seeing that the ship was not yet in a sinking condition as

This cruiser and the 5,000-ton ship, no description of which was given, brought to a total of 41 the number of Japanese vessels which have been destroyed by the American Army, Navy and Marine Corps in a little more than six weeks of fighting.

In command of the torpedo boat was 30-year-old Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley, of New York and Texas. The Navy said he had been commended for carrying out his mission successfully. After his graduation from Annapolis in 1933, he saw service on large surface vessels but more recently began specializing in submarine chasers and torpedo boats.

The latter, known in the Navy as "PT" boats, are very heavily armed, extremely speedy craft built for just such raids as that credited to Bulkeley and his crew.

Lightning Bolts. Each of these small craft, of which the Navy has several scores, carries four 50-caliber machine-guns housed in two turrets driven by compressed air, and four 18-inch torpedo tubes. They may be used either for lightning blows against surface ships or for speedy defensive action against low flying airplane attacks.

Each vessel carries a crew of one officer and eight men. The craft are powered by three motors which have a total maximum output of 4,200 horsepower. At top speed the fastest of these craft can make around 70 knots, about 84 land miles an hour. At lower speed, around 50 knots, they can cruise almost indefinitely.

Earliest United States models were about 70 feet long, later models are 77 feet long. Each boat costs about $250,000, a figure approximating the cost of a four-motored bombing airplane. Contributing to this expense is the fact that the boats have double mahogany hulls and that they are equipped with much expensive machinery to produce their extremely high operating speed.

The navy's communiqué said of submarine activity along the Atlantic coast that it was "continuing from Cape Hatteras to Newfoundland."

Text of Communiqué. The communiqué said: "Far East—A motor torpedo boat under Admiral Hart's far-eastern command entered Binanga bay, inside the entrance to Subic bay, Philippine Islands, and torpedoed an unidentified enemy vessel of 5,000 tons in a night attack. This small boat carried out its difficult task while under fire of machineguns and three-inch shore batteries. Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley has been commended."

U. S. Industrial Output Now at Highest Point

1941 Production Rises From 139 to 168 Per Cent of '35-39.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—The Federal Reserve Board said today that American industrial production rose in 1941 from 139 to 168 per cent of the 1935-39 average.

This 29-point gain was one of the largest for any year and brought the figure to the highest point in American history.

The December index of 168 was two points higher than November, but the board explained that actually December production was

In its summary, the board said, "Industrial activity declined less than seasonally in December and the first half of January, retail trade continued in large volume, and prices of many commodities rose further."

Army Favors Bill To Enlist Women For Noncombat Duty

By RUTH COWAN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A tall slim chap in a U. S. Army uniform with silver leaves on his shoulders got up in a congressional hearing today and solemnly and emphatically said:

"We've got a job to do. We'll do it better if we use women in some occupations."

Presbyterians' Parleys Stress Education Plan

Church Will Carry on Four-Year Program, Leaders Assert.

Presbyterians of Georgia and the nation are determined that war shall not interfere with their four-year program of religious education of the youth of America. Rather, they insist there is more reason than ever it should be carried on.

This was forcefully brought out yesterday at three conferences of Presbyterians in Atlanta. They were:

The executive committee on religious education of the Synod of Georgia; the executive committee on home missions of the Presbyterian general assembly; and the permanent committee on evangelism of the general assembly.

These Atlanta conferences principally were devoted to making plans for future meetings of broader scope. Dr. Edward D. Grant, executive secretary of the committee on religious education, said the objective is "to equip the nation with something more than mere military defense."

Dr. Grant came here to confer with three Atlanta members of the planning commission who will attend the important religious conference in Richmond, Va., tomorrow and Friday. They are Miss Janie McGaughey, Miss Annie Tait Jenkins and Miss Deddie May Austin.

Plans were discussed for a great religious education movement to be launched in Atlanta, by the Georgia synod, next May 11 and 12. This will be a four-year period of education carried on by churches and Sunday schools. It will cover all the United States and Canada.

The general assembly of the Presbyterian church will meet in Knoxville, Tenn., May 28, and plans for the assembly's program were discussed yesterday at the Atlanta conferences.

A two-day conference on the annual fellowship campaign for young people will be held May 11 and 12 at the Rabun-Nacoochee school at Rabun Gap.

HEADS A WVS—Mrs. Charles Jagels yesterday was named chairman of the Atlanta unit, American Woman's Voluntary Service, succeeding Mrs. Trammell Scott, resigned.

Need 12,000 at Once. Lieutenant Colonel Ira Swift, of the general staff, told the committee the Army wants 12,000 women at once—10,000 to be used in the airplane interceptor command. He estimated the cost to Uncle Sam to train, house and put the women in uniform at about $10,000,000 the first year.

Colonel Swift explained that it isn't because there is a shortage of man power that the Army wants women, but because there are certain jobs, such as the highly important one of telephone operator, in which women have shown themselves superior to men.

For this unprecedented event, there was a goodly turnout of Military Affairs Committee members in their places at the high semicircular bench at one end of the room. In a corner, was a World War I relic, a machinegun with a German helmet hanging carelessly on the muzzle.

Mrs. Rogers, wearing a black suit, beamed as she told the committee that since she introduced the bill last May, and later amended it after Pearl Harbor, when the Army really got seriously interested, she hasn't had "one letter of objection."

Mrs. Jagels will succeed Mrs. Trammell Scott, who was named chairman of the service immediately following its organization about a year ago. Mrs. Scott tendered her resignation as chairman after being named chairman of the Woman's Division, Fulton County Council for Defense.

Mrs. Jagels, a native of Long Island, N. Y., moved here with her husband soon after he was elected president and general manager of Davison-Paxon Company.

She immediately became interested in local civic and social affairs, becoming a member of the Young Matrons' Circle of the Talulah Falls school, and taking active part in its affairs. She was among the first Atlanta women to join the A.W.S., which was organized here last spring by Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker while her husband, the famous World War ace and president of Eastern Air Lines, was recovering from injuries suffered when a passenger plane crashed near Jonesboro.

Mrs. Jagels is the mother of two children, Joan and Nancy Jagels, students at Washington Seminary.

Officer To Face Beating Charge

W. F. Stevens, city patrolman, will face charges of conduct unbecoming an officer when the police committee meets January 29. The charges are the outgrowth of a dance hall row last Saturday night in which a 22-year-old seaman, first class, from the naval base at Chamblee, is alleged to have been attacked by the officer while making an arrest.

Police Chief Hornsby said he will prefer the charges following an investigation of circumstances surrounding the altercation. Assistant Chief A. J. Holcombe and Lieutenant F. L. Tippen made the investigation for the chief's office.

The seaman is said to have been beaten with a blackjack, and Stevens is alleged to have admitted using the weapon in making the arrest.

Hall County Jury Indicts Lonnie Gravitt

Gainesville Man Charged With Slaying Henry Burnett.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Jan. 20.—Lonnie Gravitt, local store operator, was indicted on charges of murder Tuesday morning by the Hall county grand jury as a result of the fatal shooting January 7 of Henry Burnett, garage operator, in the former's store after an argument over the sale of an automobile, according to Sheriff A. Gravitt was reported to have fired two pistol shots at Burnett, only one taking effect and killing him almost instantly. The sheriff said Gravitt admitted the shooting, but said it was in self-defense.

Trial is expected next week when superior court considers the criminal calendar. Judge T. S. Candler will preside and Solicitor G. Fred Kelley will represent the state.

Small numbers of United States soldiers, going as observers, have sailed in previous Canadian troops convoys.

The most recent American party was given a send-off by Colonel J. L. Ralston, Canadian defense minister, who paused during an Friend who often infests our suburban mansion feels better now. He has freed himself of a 20-pound plaster cast on his right foot. But not of his crutches. Somebody slammed an automobile door on his foot.

What has bothered him principally is baths. He adores a shower—so he can pretend to turn on the cold water and yell. But the neighbors have grown accustomed to that and we've had no complaints nor calls from police in several years.

He hates a tub. But he's had to take them, so he could keep that cast out of water.

And he had to have a right-handed tub. Or would it be left-handed? Anyway, a tub from which he could dangle his right foot, the one with the cast.

My bathroom, with the shower, also has a tub. But it wouldn't fit him, unless he rested his head against the faucets. So he was forced to take the upstairs bath, where he could keep that foot out.

He travels quite a lot, crutches and all. And he says hotel clerks think he's a darn fool when he asked whether the room assigned him has a left-handed or right-handed tub. Worse than that, none of them knows.

But now he can enjoy a shower again.

A Nation's Sorrow

"Names make news." And names make heart throbs and bring tears. Not since Will Rogers and Wiley Post crashed in the frozen north has there been such universal grief.

Left-Handed Bathtubs—and The Why of Which as followed the news that Carole Lombard "and 21 others" were dead after a crash in the Nevada mountains.

Who besides relatives and friends recalls today the identity of the "21 others"? Fifteen of them were Army men flying to new posts. Far more valuable to the nation than any actor. But none was a screen star whose face was known to millions.

With all respect to the great flying record of Wiley Post, himself a famous figure, I think his loss was overshadowed in the public mind by the death of Will Rogers. Post was a name in the newspapers. Rogers was everybody's intimate friend.

Strange how a flickering picture on a silver screen has become such a friend. Think of the millions who never saw Carole Lombard "in person" but have been genuinely shocked and grieved over her sudden death. That she was the wife of Clark Gable, one of the greatly admired masculine stars, added to the public's sorrow.

Many of us in Atlanta, perhaps feel a deeper loss than the average movie patron, because we had met—or at least seen—Miss Lombard when she visited us for the premiere of "Gone With the Wind." I had a few moments' chat—and found her lovely and charming.

More Peanuts

Tomorrow marks start of National Peanut Week, designed to make the nation peanut conscious. Idea is to increase nation's peanut consumption for the week by a hundred million pounds, which is a slew of goobers.

It can be done, easily. By extensive free sampling.

Average man can go for week after week and never eat a peanut. Nor feel a yearning for one. But he meets a friend who has a bag of peanuts. Friend offers him one. He accepts, just to be polite. And he's off on a peanut jag.

Few are the determined souls at a ball game who can eat one small sack of peanuts and quit. It's like taking one drink.

Number of south Georgia towns have been staging blackouts with fine co-operation and success.

Few of them would be considered military objectives. But the Albany Herald points out that they are protection to Albany, with its two big airports and military centers.

Have You an 'Electric'?

If you happen to have in your home a usable electric sewing machine you don't actually need you can find a new home for it—where it will join the national defense movement.

That is the headquarters of the American Red Cross, now established at 848 Peachtree street, in a big old mansion acquired several months ago.

Here dozens of women, unpaid volunteers, are working daily on garments for children—in England just now. Maybe we'll need even more for use at home.

They are using old-fashioned foot-treadle sewing machines—which is a tiresome task throughout a long day.

I'm sure the Red Cross would send for your electric machine if you can't deliver it.

Edd Burch, of the Dalton citizen, confesses he hasn't tried but he is told that if you place a small slab of American cheese in your coffee cup it will not melt but will flavor your coffee.

I shall not experiment. I like my cheese to taste like cheese and my coffee like coffee.

Scarcity of metals, says a Washington report, may cause nickels and pennies to be taken out of circulation. What are we going to do when the plate comes 'round at Sunday school?

Only way to tell whether you've blacked out your home properly is take a walk around outside and get a good look. And then climb a tree and look again.

Looks like we're soon going to have a nation of tireless walkers.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

ENGLAND TOOK IT.

Commissioner Phyllis Taylor, of the Salvation Army, director of social work for women and children in England, spoke at Druid Hills Baptist church last Friday evening on "I Saw England Take It," and she helped us tremendously.

Daughter of Commissioner Higgins, who spoke in our church some years ago, Phyllis Taylor knows folks and loves folks, like all good Salvationists, and it is easy to understand why they selected her to direct this great ministry to the women and children and aged people of England in these days of anguish and grief.

She told us how England responded to rationing—how they willingly did without many things they had been accustomed to—and how they put to larger use many things they had not depended upon before the war.

She told us how they responded to the order to move the children out of London and the other larger cities—how the little children themselves quickly entered into the co-operative spirit of making the best of dislocated homes. There were many illustrations that this limited space will not permit, but I must tell you this story. She said she went once to carry a bundle of things to some little children who were crowded, for a season, in one house, and they were deeply appreciative, and, childlike, wanted to express their gratitude. One little boy said to Commissioner Taylor, "I can't give you anything, but I can show you how my father marches," and with that, he straightened himself, threw back his shoulders, and marched the few steps which the crowded room permitted.

She told us about the blackouts, and the daylight raids, about the raid wardens and the fire-fighters. It was a graphically told story, full of drama and romance.

She told us about going one day to a section where there had been a great fire from bombing. In that section they had one of the homes for aged women, and out in the yard of this house there were innumerable bits of burned paper, which, the moment you touched them, they would shatter. She said one of the women reached down and picked up a particular bit of charred paper, and it didn't shatter. They were amazed. Upon careful examination, they found on this bit of card a verse of Scripture. Commissioner Taylor had that scoured bit of paper in her hand last Friday night, and read that passage of Scripture:

"I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my Helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me." Hebrews 13:5-6.

"It is because countless hearts in England believe that very promise," said Phyllis Taylor, "that England could take it. And I believe you have countless hearts in America who claim this very promise, and who will stand up unafraid and undismayed, whatever may come to you."

T. Earl Suttles To Resign City Registrar Post

Fulton Collector's Action Follows Ruling by Attorney Savage.

T. Earl Suttles, Fulton county tax collector, who has served as city registrar for the past several years, will resign his position as registrar, he notified Councilman John A. White yesterday.

Suttles said he could not prepare separate lists for the city, as would be required under a ruling by City Attorney Jack C. Savage, who held that the city cannot use the same list prepared for the county. Suttles, however, offered every facility of his office in making up a city list if the need arises.

The 1941 Georgia legislature set up a new system of registrations for Fulton county, but in so doing abrogated an old law permitting the city to use the same list prepared for county use, according to Savage. This means that if a city election should be held, a special city registration list must be prepared.

The old city list has not been purged since 1940. White said since there are no scheduled elections, the need for a list might not arise, but pointed out that if Mayor LeCraw should join the service and vacate his post a special election for mayor might be necessary. In that event the city would have to name a registrar to act until the 1943 session of the legislature, when the defect in the present law probably will be corrected.

SAYS FARM PRICE INCREASE WON'T BRING INFLATION

Editor, Constitution: Does it take wars for the farmers of these United States to receive prices more in keeping with other laborers? For some time a certain number of feature writers have been erecting scarecrows about the fear of inflation if the price of farm crops were allowed to advance. As long as the price of farm lands improved remain at $10 per acre in the shadow of Atlanta and a machinegun that a mule can carry on its back cost $12,000, which of the two items do you think would most likely cause disastrous inflation that some fear is hiding under our beds?

SECONDARY DIRT ROADS NEEDED FOR FARMERS

Editor, Constitution: The war restrictions on tires and automobiles and trucks will be felt to a far greater degree in the rural and agricultural sections than in the cities and towns. To the farmer the question of transportation is already assuming formidable proportions. Horse and mule transportation on its way to the forefront again.

Transportation of people and products from farms bring up the most important question of good roads. Concrete highways which are now constantly filled with fast-flying cars of all descriptions, including murderous speeders, huge commercial trucks and an endless stream of Army vehicles, are certainly not suitable for animal-drawn transportation. It is too dangerous and too hard on livestock. It will be a most important job of the various counties and the State Highway Department to immediately begin the building or repair of primary and secondary dirt roads.

Many thousands of new riders have begun using street cars, buses and trackless trolleys in the past few weeks. Shortages of tires and automobiles, and other changed conditions brought about by the War, have given us a much bigger job to do.

If you are one of our new riders, we extend you a hearty welcome. Perhaps you haven't been on our cars in five years, or ten years, or even twenty years. If so, our operators will be glad to answer your questions and to show you every friendly consideration.

We admit frankly that you may find your car or bus pretty crowded on occasions—especially during the rush hours. The great increase in riding has come at a time when we are having trouble getting additional equipment—new buses and trackless trolleys.

Because of War conditions, crowding will get worse before it gets better. Even with the delivery of six new 45-passenger buses and 13 new 44-passenger trackless trolleys, expected within a few months, we must still appeal to your patience.

Please help us to meet the situation by riding as much as you can during the non-rush hours, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. You will get better service and also help others whose jobs require them to ride at fixed times.

Uncertain Destiny

Steve Tells Linda Something of the Horses

SYNOPSIS.

Linda Phillips, an attractive stenographer in Prairieville, has been engaged for four years to Kyle Norman, whose apparent inability to hold down a job has postponed their marriage several times. Linda craves excitement. She and Sally Barnes, a friend of school days, spend a week-end with Diane Frazier, a fashion artist in Chicago. At a cocktail party Linda meets Greg Hollister, a chemical engineer. They are attracted to each other instantly. Soon after her return home, Greg visits her. Sally and her husband, Hugh, a banker, give a dinner party for Linda and Greg. Linda is thrilled. Greg leaves that night. Linda is so much in love with Greg that when her parents disapprove of him she resigns her job and goes to Chicago to live with Diane. The day she arrives Greg, Diane and Linda attend a reception for wealthy Jerry Coleman and his bride, Brenda Jordan. There Linda meets Steve Baridson, a writer, who abandoned his career because Brenda killed him. Linda is alone with Greg for a while, but his attitude has changed. Reluctantly the next day Diane informs Linda that Greg doesn't love her, that he has left for South America and that it was understood he would marry Diane. Heartbroken, Linda rushes from the apartment. Presently Steve arrives. When he hears what has happened he searches for Linda and finds her. She is contemplating suicide. He tells Linda he has decided to continue writing a book on the family farm and offers her a job as secretary. Linda accepts and agrees to marry him to avoid scandal.

INSTALLMENT XXVIII.

Linda changed the subject hastily, realizing that to continue talking about the former fashion model—for that had been Brenda's vocation until she met Jerry Coleman—might prove disastrous.

"You said there are caretakers at your farm. Are they expecting us?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Delaney take care of the farm," he answered. "Mrs. Delaney does the cooking and housework, and Jim looks after the horses and keeps the place in good shape. I called them early this morning to expect us."

"Have you forgotten anything?" she asked anxiously when Steve told her they were nearing the farm. "Did you bring your portable typewriter and plenty of paper?"

"You sound like a wife," Steve grinned.

Linda flushed. "I hope I'll be a satisfactory stenographer, she faltered. "A role of this kind is new to me."

"If you're not afraid of good, hard work," he said smiling, "I'm sure you'll do very well. Once we get some sort of system arranged we can accomplish a great deal on the book."

He glanced at her. "Do you ride, Linda?"

"Not very well."

"You'll learn," Steve's voice held a ring of confidence. "Wait until you see Rusty and Challenger, and Old Topsy."

"Are those the only horses on the farm?" Linda asked. "If so, Topsy sounds like my speed."

"Dad is with Cavalier and Patricia. They're thoroughbreds. So is Challenger, for that matter."

1 Assembly for

'Bugs' Baer Says:

Well, Adolf is complaining that it's bitterly cold in Russia and it got me to thinking of old Connie Mack around 1912.

Connie's team was handing Grif-fith's outfit a good shelling when it came up a drizzle in the third inning.

Old Grif hollered to the ump for a called game and Connie sent word, "Tell Grif it's raining on my side of the field, too."

So I figure it's just as cold for the Russians. Except the Russians are winning.

On these occasions he exclaimed pathetically, "I was wrong, Linda, to think I'd ever be able to write. I can't do it. I can't."

"Of course you will," she answered valiantly. "There's no hurry, Steve. We have plenty of time. Think it out carefully. I've sensed that his despondency was brought on by thought of Brenda, and she had little time to think of her own bitterness and heart-ache."

For Linda, the next few weeks were particularly trying as she attempted to establish some sort of harmony between them. Many times she knew that he resented her presence. On these occasions he was curt. Although impatient, she worked quietly on his notes, revising, deleting; and gradually Steve's interest in his work returned.

Soon he was working furiously, and Linda was kept busy all through the day and sometimes far into the night as chapter after chapter took shape. Steve seemed to possess superhuman strength—a frenzied desire to finish the book. And for what? Linda wondered, dully. When it was finished—what then?

As time went on and the story grew, she learned to love Rusty, the copper-colored horse, to know and understand his gentle mistress. This was a love story, a novel that wove through death, happiness, destruction—an entire generation of intense living.

There was little actual conversation between Linda and Steve during those first few weeks aside from a discussion of the book. At the start their association was rather like that of employer and employee. As soon as her working day was done and dinner was over, Linda escaped to her room, but her thoughts were frightened—filled with the remembrance of Greg and all that had happened.

"Perhaps it is equally hard for Steve," she thought one evening when the solitude of her bedroom seemed more than she could bear. "Perhaps we can help each other—to forget."

Cantor Host To Fairbanks On Air at 9

Carlos Romeros, Opera Tenor, Sings During 'Time To Smile.'

Eddie Cantor will turn swash-buckler for a guest star tilt with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. on the "Time To Smile" program over WSB at 9 o'clock. Also on the guest list is Carlos Romeros, young opera tenor.

Fairbanks is in Manhattan for the opening of his new picture, "Corsican Brothers," and is in excellent form to parry the thrusts of Cantor, Harry von Zell and Bert "The Mad Russian" Gordon.

Friends and Schoolmates To Welcome Mrs. Moore

By SALLY FORTH.

ONE OF THE MOST interesting visitors scheduled for Atlanta next week is Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, of New York, who arrives Sunday on a mission for the Y. W. C. A., of which she is a leading national board member and chairman of the World Emergency Fund. She will be the guest while here of Sallie (Mrs. Granger) Hansell in Druid Hills and, in addition to the annual dinner to be given by the Y. W. C. A. in her honor, she will serve as inspiration for a series of more intimate affairs.

In addition to her Y. W. C. A. affiliations, Mrs. Moore heads the United Chinese Relief in this country—a cause that is close to her heart for the reason that she was born in China. The former Elizabeth Luce, she is the daughter of Mrs. Henry W. Luce and the late Mr. Luce, who was prominently known as a Presbyterian missionary to China. The youngest of four children, she is the sister of Henry Luce, celebrated editor of "Time" and "Fortune." Her early education was acquired in China, after which she studied in Europe and subsequently came to America to enter Wellesley College. Both she and her sister, Mrs. Lester Severinghaus, of Haverford, Pa., were schoolmates of Atlanta's Beatrice Jefferson (Mrs. Thomas M.) Stubbs at Wellesley. In fact, Mrs. Severinghaus and Mrs. Stubbs were members of the same class and are very close friends, having kept in touch with each other since their graduation.

The Wellesley Alumnae of Atlanta are, of course, very proud of their fellow member, Mrs. Moore, and they plan to entertain informally in her honor during her visit here. And in case she arrives in time, Mrs. Hansell will assemble a group of friends to meet her next Sunday evening.

Mrs. Stubbs recalls that Mrs. Moore is a striking figure with a dynamic personality and a brilliant intellect. Since leaving college she has developed into a forceful and charming speaker and is in great demand with women's organizations throughout the east.

Don't forget to phone Mrs. Wilmer Dutton and tell her how many students from the Naval Air Base you would like as dinner guests on Sunday. Today is the "deadline" for reporting the number you expect.

ADGATE ELLIS (MRS. WALKER) HILL, of St. Louis, is receiving as usual a most cordial welcome from her Atlanta friends this week, having arrived Sunday after a visit to her son and daughter, Ellis and Mary McGaughey Gay, in Pensacola, Fla. The first night after her arrival she spent with her brother and sister, "Ruddy" and Martha Ellis, the second with Bill and Frances Ellis, and she is now the guest of her cousins, Paul and Mildred Seydel.

Adgate was a special guest of honor on Monday at the luncheon which followed the meeting of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mildred is president. And she was introduced as the granddaughter of that beloved Atlanta, the late Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb, who founded the "Tallulah" Falls school—a project so dear to the hearts of all Georgia clubwomen. Last evening the Seydels entertained a small group of friends at dinner in the Mirador Room of the Capital City Club in Adgate's honor.

Before returning to St. Louis on Friday, Adgate will visit her son and daughter, Ewell and Mildred Ewing Gay, on Powers Ferry road.

TWENTY-TWO-YEAR-OLD Irving Gresham recently enlisted in the Air Corps of the United States Army and before he reported at the training camp in a midwestern city he received an encouraging message from his colored mammy, Lizzie White.

Lizzie has been in his family a quarter of a century and nursed all of Mrs. Irving Gresham's children. Mrs. Gresham still retains Lizzie as her washwoman, and she keeps in contact with the Gresham family all of the time.

Her affection for him prompted Lizzie to pen the following message to Irving:

"By-By, Irving, you have my Prayer and best wishes.

"May you go with courage that what it takes don't be afraid.

"So Pray the African prayer: "Oh, Lord, if you don't help

Mr. Keese and his bride left for a wedding trip to Florida, and upon their return will reside in Atlanta.

National Defense Is Program Subject

Herman Nelson, vocational teacher at the Zebulon and Concord high schools, spoke to the Meansville Woman's Club at the January meeting.

The program, the first of a series on national defense, was arranged by Mrs. J. S. Slade and Mrs. Sam Wilson. Mrs. A. J. McCord led the salute to the flag. Mrs. Wilson led the devotional and G. B. Hutchinson sang "Flag of the Free."

Mrs. Hightower Gives Party For Her Sons in the Service

Lieutenant Harry Hightower, U. S. A., and Lieutenant George Hightower, U. S. A. C., were honored guests at the buffet supper given last evening by their mother, Mrs. T. J. Hightower, at her Westley road residence. They graduated several years ago from Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Va., and engaged in business immediately thereafter.

These well-known Atlantans received their commissions in the United States Army after the Japs attacked the Hawaiian Islands, and they received orders to report to their respective stations. Lieutenant Harry Hightower will report at Oklahoma City and his brother is detailed at Dayton, Ohio.

The lace-covered table in the dining room was centered with a cake embossed in red "Vs" and topped with small United States flags. Miniature soldiers and guns reflected the patriotic motif in the decorations. Suspended from the chandelier above the table were miniature airplanes arranged in formation flight, and attached to red, white and blue ribbons. Mrs. David McCullough, sister of the honor guests, assisted Mrs. Hightower in entertaining.

Young Wives Need Not Be Embarrassed Concerning This Intimate Problem

Because of natural shyness or lack of confidence in the knowledge of friends the unmarried young wife often hesitates to seek the advice of others. Instead, she risks health and happiness by use of over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can burn, scar and desensitize delicate tissue.

The Old Ladies' Home Pulls For an Air Raid, Ty Powers Is Warden

By Harold Hefterman.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 20.—With the war not two months old, Hollywood gay spots are feeling its effects.

Such dazzling names as Ciro's, Victor Hugo's, Trouville, Rhumbogio and other traditional pleasure resorts catering to stars and tourists are no longer.

The famous Coconut Grove at the Ambassador is on a two-nights-a-week basis. Charlie Foy's, Slapsie Maxie's and Bill Jordan's count more tables than patrons these nights. The Baltimore Bowl is getting by on the lure of Phil Harris' band and a 50-cent cover charge.

Outside of Macambo, now the town's leader in price and entertainment, the sunset strip looks like the street of forgotten revel. Night club operators are dazed by the sudden turn of events.

Free-spending stars, always ready to bring along a gang at $5 per dinner, plus 25 per cent cover charge and 75 cents for a questionable scotch and soda, have evaporated completely. And where there are no stars, there are no tourists—which hurts!

What are movie players doing with their night club time? One of three things—or all three: (1) auxiliary war work, (2) playing gin rummy, (3) figuring income tax bites.

Matrons in the Brentwood area are yearning for an air raid alarm—just a little false alarm will do please. In this section the Paul Revere-like duties of air wardens have fallen to such stalwarts as Gary Cooper, Fred MacMurray and Tyrone Power. On Power's beat is the Eastern Star's old women's home.

Hays office cracked down on one of the best gags in "Whispering Ghosts." There's a scene in which John Carradine stalks across the screen wearing long flannel underwear, with the two ghost hunters, Brenda Joyce and Milton Berle watching him. Brenda whispers to Berle: "Why, that ghost is a man—he has underwear on." Replies Berle: "Shhh, of course he has, do you want the Hays office after us?"

Trend of the times: With the government watching use of guns and ammunition in westerns, scripts are taking a new turn. In Roy Rogers' "South of Santa Fe," Roy nabs the villains throughout the story with a lasso instead of a gun.

Most of the South Sea Island number danced by Gene Tierney in "Son of Fury" has been snipped out by the studio. Darryl Zanuck decided after looking at the ceremonial number on the screen that it was a bit too torrid for popular consumption. Two of Gene's other South Sea dances remain intact.

... Many a humble movie prop has taken on new significance in these emergency times, but none more so than the rubber fish. The first fish crisis arrived during the making of "Tortilla Flat," when it was discovered that the rubbery fins previously used had assumed a value all out of proportion to their scenic worth. So real, live, wiggling fish had to be substituted, which was bad. Not only do real fish offend the olfactory nerves of actors, but they will rapidly under the lights. Prop departments are now developing a plastic fish.

Frank Morgan, in bathrobe and slippers, gave one of the most appreciated performances of his career Sunday morning. His audience was a couple of dozen Army boys who, with a few hours leave, had piled into trucks and set out to make a tour of movie star homes. Morgan had gone out to get the morning paper when one of the boys recognized him. The cars screeched to a stop and a voice commanded, "Hey, Morgan—come on out here." Morgan not only went out, but he invited the soldiers inside, entertaining them informally for nearly an hour. Then he gave the drivers addresses of other stars in the Beverly and Bel Air districts.

Third finger, left hand means nothing to Hedy Lamarr—at least, so she claims. John Howard gave her a costly amethyst ring last week, and Hedy put it right on Cupid's digit. But to curious friends, she said: "I'm not marrying John Howard or any other actor." Honey-mooners Mickey Rooney and Ava Gardner are on their way to Boston to participate in that city's United War Fund drive this week and also to visit Washington and various Army camps. Smithfield, North Carolina, Ava's home town, is also on their list.

Be sure you have plenty of jingling money in your jeans when you go into a movie theater January 22 and for a week thereafter. Beginning on that date, more than 10,000 film houses will pass the plate at every performance in a nation-wide drive to help the 1942 march of dimes-infantile paralysis campaign. Among coin-teasing novelties devised by Loew's Oscar Doob, in charge of publicity, are theater "Wishing Wells," with thousands of pretty girls recruited as "Well-Wishers." You'll be invited to drop a dime (or more) and make a wish. "A Wish for Victory in '42" is the suggestion.

To keep your skin as beautiful as Lana Turner's a cleansing cream is a necessity, of course, but why shouldn't it be one that's a delight to use, such as the one mentioned below? Miss Turner is now playing in "Johnny Eager," a M-G-M picture.

Try This New Fluffy Cream For Efficient Cleansing

By Winifred Ware.

Imagine putting fluffy frosting on your face! Well, this cream looks more like that than anything else, but it's really a cleansing cream. Frothy white, and whipped so fine that it stands in peaks, this cream is withal so smooth and light that you can hardly feel it between your fingers.

You'll get a special pleasure each time you dip your fingers into the jar and smooth the cream over your face, for its delightful texture seems to caress your skin. However, the very nicest part is the way it whisks away dirt, just seems to whip it right up into its softness and remove it from your skin.

Everyone needs a basic cleansing cream and this is one that will suit any type skin. The secret of doing a thorough job with this or any other cleansing cream is to use two applications. The first creaming takes off all the surface dirt accumulated during the day. The second creaming really gets to work on the stubborn grime which clogs your pores.

Do remember to cleanse your neck at the same time that you

A Good Cook Knows Hot Breads

By Sally Saver.

One of the easiest ways to get interest in a meal is to vary the bread. Thick buttered corn bread, tiny cheese biscuits, fruit muffins, or any one of a wide variety of breads give zest to meals that otherwise might be only ordinary. A meal built around left-overs or lacking filling quality should have a fresh, good bread to build it up. Try these breads, which have both interest and important nutritive value:

Buttermilk Bran Pan Bread.
2 tablespoons shortening.
1-4 cup sugar.
1 egg.
1 cup bran.
1 cup buttermilk.
1-4 cups flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1-2 teaspoon soda.

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat until creamy. Add bran and buttermilk and let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt, baking powder and soda and add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Put in greased pan and bake in moderately hot oven, (425 degrees) about 25 minutes. Cut into squares and serve hot.

Bran-Cherry Party Bread.
First Part: 1 tablespoon butter or margarine.
1-4 cup light brown sugar.
1-3 cup Maraschino cherries.
1-4 cup chopped nuts.
Batter: 2-1-2 cups sifted flour.
4-1-2 teaspoons baking powder.
3-4 cup sugar.
3-4 teaspoon salt.
1 egg, beaten.
1-4 cups milk.
2 tablespoons melted shortening.
1 cup bran.
1-3 cup cherries.
1-4 cup chopped nuts.

First Part: Melt butter in loaf pan and sprinkle sugar, cherries and nuts over bottom of pan. Batter: Sift flour with dry ingredients. Beat egg, add milk and shortening; stir into flour mixture. Add bran, cherries and nuts. Mix and pour into loaf pan, over sugar-cherry mixture. Bake 1 hour in moderate, 350-degree oven. Remove at once from pan and cool before slicing.

Questions about foods, menus, cooking and serving will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Today's Charm Tip.

Keep your conversation keyed on a note of optimism, for optimism is as needed as any other vital defense measure.

These buttermilk-bran squares may be served at any meal.

Jilted Boy's Sister Takes Up Battle

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am desperately in love with J. R., and he says I am the first girl he has ever loved, and he swears he will never love another. I used to go with a boy, and he liked me, but I did not like him, and since J. R. and I have started going together, his sister has started at him. She is very anxious for her brother to go with me again, and she wants me to like him. About two weeks ago I saw her with J. R., and I became very angry with him. He gets very mad every time I mention her name. We had planned to marry soon, but he will have to go to camp, and I want to know if we should marry before he leaves or wait until he comes back? Should I date other boys while he is gone? His people seem to like me and want him to bring me to their home, do you think I should? Do you think he is interested in this other girl? WORRIED E. C.

If you and J. R. had planned to marry, before he was ordered into service, I would advise you to go on with your plans. If this marriage plan is recent, that is since he has known he was going into service, I would advise waiting until he returns. If I have known him over a period of years and always knew you would marry him some day, your marriage should certainly not be termed a wartime romance. After he leaves and you are not engaged, I see no reason why you should not date other boys.

If his people want you to come to see them, I think it would be very nice to go and meet them. You will have to meet them sooner or later, so the sooner you go the better it will be. I do not think J. R. is interested in the other girl. They probably had a date together, but that does not mean that they are in love. This girl resents your not liking her brother, so she will be jealous of anyone you go with.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "Grandmother, please don't let Bettie play with your purse. We are trying to teach her she must never open anyone's purse but her own."

Mother: "I won't let Jean empty my purse like that." Grandmother: "Well, Grandma will let her. She has so much fun doing it—and I don't mind."

Important teachings should be agreed upon by all the adults in the home and should be uniformly carried out by them.

MY DAY: Youth Commission Studies Economics

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—Yesterday we returned to sunny, mild weather. I was almost tempted to take the four large envelopes of mail, which I brought home from the Office of Civilian Defense to do over the weekend, and sit in the sun in the garden. However, I decided that winter time is apt to be deceptive and I would soon find it very chilly, so I remained indoors.

Our guests at dinner on Saturday evening were extremely interesting. One of them, Dr. Jerome Davis, is working for the Y. M. C. A. with the German prisoners in Canada. The other one, Dr. D. Davis, had just returned from Europe, where he had been in Germany as late as the month of November, in the prison camps where British and Russian soldiers are being held. Both of them gave descriptions of conditions, and we enjoyed talking with them.

Yesterday afternoon I talked on a local radio station with Mr. John Kelly, head of our physical fitness program; Dr. Dearing, of our O.C.D. medical group, and Dr. Gwynn, head of the District of Columbia Medical Association, who has inaugurated this series of broadcasts. He tries to interest the general public in keeping itself well in doing the things which will be a help to the medical profession.

On my regular broadcast at 6:45, the secretary of agriculture, Mr. Claude R. Wickard, joined me. I felt that I had a double obligation to him, because Mrs. Wickard has been out taking my place at an important meeting in South Dakota. She, I am sure, gave much of interest, which I could not possibly have given to this meeting. On the way home she is stopping to see her daughters. I have great sympathy with her, for I nearly always use any trip which takes me in reach of my children, to snatch a few hours with them.

I wonder if you noticed in the papers yesterday the mention of the American Youth Commission's last report. The foreword is written by Mr. Owen Young, chairman of the board. I would have liked to have discussed it at length on my broadcast last night, but there was no time to do so. I think, in any case, it is important for people to read the report itself.

The committee has agreed on some very interesting statements. Just to excite a little more argument, they announce that much unemployment existed among our young people, which they themselves were entirely unable to prevent. They then go on to state that all young people should stay in school until they are 16, should have one year's service to the state, after which our economic system is obligated to adjust itself so that anyone who wants a job may have it.

Try This Old Home-Mixed Cough Relief. Surprising!

Child Could Make It.

No Cooking. Big Saving.

You may not know it, but, in your own kitchen, and in just a moment, you can easily prepare a really surprising relief for coughs due to colds. It's old-fashioned—your mother probably used it—but for real results, it can't be beaten.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all.

Then get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in throat and bronchial irritations.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This you make a full pint of really splendid cough syrup, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste. And for quick relief, it's a wonder. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

UPSET STOMACH AGGRAVATES TEETHING

In all the world, she knows just what to do for me when I suffer from those little ills which come along while I am teething. Mama gives me Teething when I'm temporarily constipated and when gas or a sour stomach give me colic pains, or when I eat the wrong kind of food and run off my bowels. Teething makes a big hit with me because it tastes good, and Mama likes it 'cause twelve powders cost but 50c. The drug store man keeps plenty of Teething. Give Teething according to the directions in each package and write Teething, Columbia, Ga., for a free baby booklet.

Male Telephone Operator Here Baffles 'Hello Girls' Up North

A man acting as a long distance telephone operator has more difficulties than one would suppose. Frank Gaither, WGST announcer discovered yesterday while putting through a call from Atlanta to Washington.

Gaither dialed 110 for long distance and almost fell out of his chair when a man's deep voice answered instead of the customary feminine voice. But he told the male operator whom he wanted in Washington and sat back to wait for his connection.

He didn't get it as quickly as he thought he should, because all up the long distance line girl telephone operators just couldn't believe their ears when the man long distance operator in Atlanta asked for Gaither's party at a hotel in the national capital.

"Do they have men telephone operators in Atlanta?" she asked in amazement. Finally, Gaither said, a woman operator in Atlanta took over and got his call all the way through.

A spokesman for the telephone company said the male operator was a man being trained for the traffic division who was familiarizing himself with the machinery of long distance calls. The company has no men "hello girls."

Pay Switching To Go Before Council Group

Donaldson Says Evidence Lacking on Practice in His Office.

Councilman John A. White, finance committee chairman, announced yesterday he will call a special meeting of the committee sometime next week to consider an ordinance to bar swapping of pay increases among municipal employees.

White's announcement came as Clarke Donaldson, chief of the construction department, one of the three divisions named by Councilman J. Allen Couch as participating in the swapping practice, said a survey of his employees had failed to produce any evidence to support Couch's contention.

Fire Chief C. C. Styron said he had been told of one such swap in his department after it had been discontinued, and Miss Fannie Hinton, librarian, said a shift in one raise in that department had been effective for months with the tacit sanction of the mayor and member of council's finance committee. She added the need for the swap was a mistake in awarding a salary raise to one employee when another was entitled to it.

Couch's proposed ordinance would prohibit swapping raises or dividing salaries of any employee without the consent of the department.

White said he is convinced that such swaps are only isolated incidents and are not generally practiced.

Basement Fire In Henry Grady Rouses Guests

Firemen Battle Dense Smoke Three Hours; Damage Small.

A stubborn fire early yesterday morning in the basement of the Henry Grady hotel roused a number of the hotel's guests, and gave firemen a three-hour struggle before it was extinguished.

The fire, confined to the bell-boys' locker room, a print shop and a small pressing shop, threw off dense clouds of smoke and gas which frustrated firemen in their efforts to reach it.

Even with gas masks, the firemen were turned back by the dense smoke, and they were unable to reach the fire until holes had been cut in the flooring on the hotel's ground floor, and another hole had been torn in a fire wall separating the hotel's basement and the basement of the Roky theater.

Willis Poole, assistant manager of the hotel, said suits belonging to several of the hotel's guests, which were in the pressing shop, were damaged. Little or no smoke rose above the first floor or the guests remained in their rooms.

Jack Hodges, manager of the theater, said the theater sustained only slight smoke damage in the basement lounge room. The theater operated as usual yesterday.

The Guardfish was the sixth craft launched since the Electric Boat Company began its one-submarine-a-month program and the 27th since the construction of modern undersize craft started here in 1933. The keel of the 1,526-ton Guardfish was laid last April 1.

ESSENTIAL MACHINERY.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 20.—Under the 1942 agricultural plan, goals call for greatly increased production of pork, lard, milk and eggs. Hence, farm machinery necessary to fill these needs will be produced at higher levels than that used for crops considered less essential, farm leaders here point out.

November 7th Ceiling Put on Gasoline Prices

Henderson Issues Orders Governing Petroleum Products' Costs.

Gasoline must be sold "at or below" retail prices of November 7, last, dealers were notified yesterday by Leon Henderson, price administrator, in Washington.

Atlanta quotations of that date per gallon were 24.5 cents for ethyl, 22.5 cents for regular and 20 cents for competitive grades. Yesterday's prices were, respectively, 23 cents, 21 cents and 19 cents.

Henderson's declaration was contained in a general letter to producers, refiners and marketers of numerous petroleum products. While gasoline was not specifically included in the list of affected products, whose prices temporarily are pegged at the November 7 level, the same result was achieved by this paragraph of the order:

"It must be understood, however, that these (gasoline) prices should remain substantially at or below November 7 levels. If they do not, a formal ceiling order will be promulgated, placing them under full control."

Henderson's letter stressed that the prices which prevailed last November 7 have not received approval from OPA, but may be revised upon completion of investigations now being conducted on the costs of production, refining and marketing.

Covered by the request are crude petroleum, tractor distillates and other distillate type motor fuels, kerosene, including range oil or stove oil; burning, heating or fuel oils; Diesel fuel oils; asphalt, including road oils and other asphalt derivatives; lubricating oils including motor, aviation and stock oils; and liquefied petroleum gases.

Household oils and spot removers, along with industrial lubricating oils, industrial naphthas and solvents, greases and specialty products are for the time being excluded from the list of petroleum items subject to the price request.

However, the maximum for crude oil prices is considered to be the price prevailing October 1, instead of November 7, as in the case of the other petroleum products.

Auditorium Ready In College Park

H. W. Livingston, superintendent of construction for the new College Park auditorium, yesterday upon completion, turned over to Mayor George Harris the keys to the structure.

The auditorium, built of concrete and modern in design, was started slightly more than a year ago and completed at a cost of $70,000. It has a seating capacity of 1,200.

Mayor Harris said he did not know if there would be a formal dedication of the auditorium, since city official and citizens are busy in the defense program.

16,016 Benefited.

During December, 16,016 persons in the county were benefited by the program and at a cost of the county of only $1,400, food valued at $38,811 was added to the meagre supplies in the needy.

This is how it works. A person receiving $9.84 per month on direct relief—the average amount—may buy $6 worth of orange food stamps, which entitles him to receive free $3 worth of blue stamps, with which he can only purchase commodities designated as surplus by the Secretary of Agriculture.

For December, the surplus commodities so distributed were butter, eggs, lard, pork, dry beans, flour, graham flour, grits, meal, rice, prunes, raisins, cabbage, carrots and oranges.

Status of Georgia Gridders Remains Same in 'Speed-up' Plan

Random Shots Never let it be said that Dem Bums fear man, beast, or even the World Champion New York Yankees. Prexy Larry MacPhail announced yesterday that Brooklyn had a contract with officials of Cuba to take the club there for spring training and that they were going "by steamship and airplane." It would take more than an enemy torpedo to dent the tough hides of Dem Bums; they already have known hand-to-hand conflict with the Bronx Bombers.

Bowling is Washington, D. C.'s, most popular sport—and in case of bombing, patrons will forego the pleasure as the duckpin centers are converted by Uncle Sam into temporary post offices. There are 900 alley beds in the city.

Speaking of baseball veterans, the Boston Braves' Johnny Cooney fits perfectly into the outlook for more "old men" in uniform next season. Cooney, 41, had a fine season in 1941, with a batting average of .319. The Braves' outfielder defies all accepted beliefs about legs wearing out after 35.

Every now and then a story bobs up about Bill Tilden playing a tennis match somewhere. He was on a pro tour last year. Tilden is closer to 50 than 45 and yet he covers a court well enough. He is just another exception to the rule about legs.

The Optimist Club of Atlanta believes in putting new members to work. As a sort of double-barreled greeting they inducted this correspondent and called upon him for the principal speech on the same day. Nice work—if you can get away with it.

Bona fide pro champion of the world in basketball are the Detroit Eagles, who play the Original Celtics next Tuesday night at the city auditorium. Coached by Dutch Dehnert, former Original Celtic, they won the world's title in a pro tournament in Chicago last March. No greater basketball attraction ever has been scheduled for Atlanta.

A drop in batting averages is predicted in the majors for next year—in spite of the fact that Joe DiMaggio is still available to play and that Johnny Mize is going to get a chance to pepper Polo Grounds fences. Ted Williams, Cecil Travis and other heavy sluggers are in the service. But the real reason for the expected drop is the fact that baseballs are apt to be used longer. This will cut down on the "rabbit" qualities so much discussed in recent years.

At a banquet honoring Minnesota's Bernie Bierman before he left Minnesota to join the Marines, Wisconsin's Harry Stuhldreher quipped: "I regret it took a war to obtain my first break in the Big Ten." Northwestern's Lyn Waldorf recommended the baffling "sleeper" play that licked the Wildcats last fall, for the final victory strategy, and Indiana's Bo McMillan drawled that Indiana "feels it is safe to return to Minnesota next year now that we have a one-to-ten chance to win a ball game."

Stop, thief, dept.: Lou Nova received more than $45,000 as his share of that travesty in the Polo Grounds in which Joe Louis won by a knockout in six rounds. It was billed as a world's championship fight. Nova never landed a solid punch, spent most of his time standing there with his guard up.

WALTHOUR GIRLS' LEAGUE. Georgia Power Trojans and Ray Barnes' Hertz Drivers girls stayed in the thick of the battle for the second-half championship of the Walthour Girls' League by squeezing out a pair of one-point victories last night at Warren Sports Arena. The Trojans came from behind in the waning seconds to win John McCarley's Walco sextet, 16 to 15, in one of the hardest fought games of the league season. Hertz accounted for Sewell Service's Red Elephants by a 20 to 19 count, as Sara Killian missed a foul try that would have tied the contest after the final whistle.

In the other contest, Speedway Service finally hit a winning stride to down Hub Hudle's Brookhaven girls, 30 to 16. Helen Kirkland and Wilson were the leaders in Speedway's success, with 13 and 12 points respectively. In the Trojan-Walco tussle, the Green team held the upper hand throughout the first three quarters, only to lose the lead in the final five minutes of the last quarter. With a little more than a minute to play, Hood crashed through with what proved to be the winning basket. Conner, Walco forward, missed a chance to win the game as she muffed two free throws as the game ended. The first half terminated with Trojans leading, 8 to 4. They held Walco without a field goal in the first two quarters.

RACK UP $10 FOR RED CROSS.—Frank Guy and Bob Ingram came out all square in their "grudge golf match" at East Lake yesterday, but the contestants and referees had so much fun they are sending a check for $10 to the Red Cross, anyhow. The idea was for the winner to equal his winnings at $1 a hole and send the money to the Red Cross. Left to right are Referee J. J. McGeary, Guy, Ingram, who had a 77, and Referee L. A. Scott, busy explaining no "foot mashies" can be used.

THE SPORTING ROLL CALL

LOS ANGELES.—It was the Duke of Wellington who said the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton. But that was a different war and a different age. That was a war in which it was more man against man than machine against machine. But competitive man power always must be one of the major factors. And the playing fields of Eton had nothing to compare with the class that is now a part of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines of the U. S. roundup moving into action almost 137 years after the Napoleon debacle.

There has never been a fighting force with as many great competitors from as many fields of sport as the United States can offer today, and will offer in much larger quantities later on. Certainly, the first World War was not even close. Look over a partial list of the early 1942 collection—Gene Tunney, Joe Louis, Hank Greenberg, Ted Williams, Paul Christman, Bob Neyland, Bernie Bierman, Biff Jones, Swede Larson, Dick Hanley, Porky Oliver, Tommy Tailer, Vic Ghezzi, Bob Feller, Frank Reagan, Bud Ward—more than I could name in a dozen columns.

And this list will grow and grow as the weeks slip by—football players, ball players, golfers, fighters—the pick of our athletic youth and our athletic experience who have had the advantage of those two vital assets: physical development and competition under pressure. This type should be equipped to make the best fighting men, whatever the service. If they are not, then our vast sporting program has been a failure.

Sport and War

Sport and war have been listed as two entirely different affairs in the way of action. I disagree with this.

Granting the dominance of the machine in modern war—the plane and the tank—it would be completely foolish to disregard the man power involved. There are and will be many great fighting men who had little part in sport. But this doesn't mean that on a general average those who have been trained physically and mentally in hard competition should not have the advantage over those who have not been trained in any game. The sporting side should have a wide margin in physical condition, in stamina, in physical and mental co-ordination. This applies especially to such body contact games as football, where discipline is also a major factor.

Looking Back to Berlin

I was in Berlin at the last Olympic games in 1936. Before these games I can't remember a first place that Germany had ever won in 40 years of Olympic competition. But Hitler, who was even then on his way to a world war, had gone all out for sport, or the training that sport brings.

He had built up the greatest German challenge the Olympics had ever known. He had ordered millions, not thousands, into early training action. In addition to this he had hundreds of thousands of German kids from

Grove Comeback Refused by Sox

BOSTON, Jan. 20.—(P)—Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, said today that an offer of "Lefty" Bob Grove to return to the Red Sox to compensate in a measure for loss of three left-handed pitchers through military service, would not be accepted. "While the Boston Red Sox deeply appreciate the long and faithful service that Bob Grove has given to the Boston club and are grateful for his offer recently made to return to try to help the Sox," Collins said, "we feel that such a come-back attempt would be an anticlimax to a grand and glorious career. We think too much of old Mose to ask him to shoulder any more pitching burdens."

More Competitors

What we need today is not less sport, but more sport. By that I don't mean more big sporting spectacles. I mean more people playing games that will bring on better health and better physical condition. Those between the ages of 20 and 28 who have drawn the benefits of athletic training should be giving this advantage to some form of the service, unless there is an extremely valid reason why they can't.

Outside of those called to action there should be more older men playing golf, more younger people playing football or boxing, or any games that will help develop legs and bodies. There should be at least two million kids between the ages of 12 and 16 playing some form of football, directed in the correct way. Football is the greatest of all games for developing the type of material needed for war.

This isn't a matter of building up winning teams. It is a matter that concerns the finest possible training for the nation's youth for what will be needed later on.

Even in the days of peace there is no substitute for good health. Certainly there is no substitute for health in the day of war. In addition to the arm forces we have now, there will be just as urgent a need for those to come along later.

The training sport brings can't furnish the entire answer, but it can at least supply one of the essentials needed for any victorious force.

Capitol Says Groups Cannot Be Deferred

Hopes of Bulldog Backers That Team Will Return Intact Still Remains Dampened.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 20.—(P)—It's up to the individual student—members of Georgia's Orange Bowl football team included—to prove himself worthy of draft deferment for completion of his education. That, in substance, was the word from Washington today, dampening somewhat the high hopes of the University of Georgia and other colleges for general deferment of junior classmen who would graduate next January 1 under a proposed academic speed-up.

Yesterday, President Harmon Caldwell told presidents and deans of state-supported educational institutions that Georgia's selective service officials had informed them they would look favorably on a plan to allow seniors to graduate May 2, and juniors to complete their work by the end of the year.

Among Georgia juniors who would graduate in this manner if deferred are Frankie Sinkwich, All-America halfback, and most of the starting lineup of Georgia's Orange Bowl championship football team. Approximately 80 per cent of the junior and senior classes at Georgia normally would fall in class I-A after the forthcoming registration of 19 and 20-year-olds, Dr. Caldwell said.

In Washington, a spokesman at national draft headquarters said: "There is nothing in the selective service law which would permit group deferments. All cases will be treated individually, and it's up to the local boards to decide if a man would be more valuable to the nation if permitted to complete his professional training."

"It's up to the individual to prove that he merits deferment because of his ability." The OPM recently reported nationwide personnel shortages of physicians, dentists and other professional men.

Under a program adopted by the National Education Association, instructors may report to draft boards on the academic progress of students considered valuable for future nonmilitary service. However, a draft spokesman added, "No one can tell the head of a school, or anyone else, that groups of students will be deferred."

Reception Center defeated Motor Transportation, 43-25, and Military Police vanquished Fifth Signal Corps, 88-20, last night in two fast games at Fort McPherson.

Groover, Reception Center, who scored 32 points in a game last week, bagged 20 points last night to lead his team.

Groover's mark was surpassed by a pair of M. P. stars, Swann, who shot 21, and Oliver, with 31, while Cooper sank 20.

Kentucky Turns Back Desperately Fighting Tech Five, 63-53

Brewer Leads Wildcat Team With 20 Points

Jackets Play Best Game; Succumb to Superb Shooting.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
A battling Georgia Tech basketball team played a heavily favored Kentucky outfit off its feet last night before losing, 63-53, as a howling crowd of nearly 2,000 watched at the Tech gymnasium.

The underdog Yellow Jackets turned in their best performance of the season in losing to the classy and colorful Wildcats of Adolph Rupp. The Techs battled gamely all the way, and, although they were behind most of the time, never were out of the running until the last two minutes of play.

Indeed, with four minutes left in the game, Tech pulled up to within four points of the perennial Southeastern Conference topnotchers with the score 53-51. But some lax guarding by the excited Jackets let Kentucky's lanky Mal Brewer get away for a couple of more baskets to cinch the contest.

The entire Tech team played brilliant ball, although badly outmanned as far as numbers are concerned. But it was Captain Carlton Lewis who twisted and turned, jumped and sweated, fell and got up again to lead the way with 20 hard-earned points. His brilliant scoring matched the elongated Brewer's total for the night.

Sophomore Gene Snyder, after getting over an early attack of stage fright, settled down and performed brilliantly, following up Lewis with 13 points. Jake Lance started the game at center and played bang-up ball until he tired badly in the second half and was replaced by Buck Stevens.

Kentucky won the game by sinking 15 of 16 foul shots, while Tech could connect with only 17 of 29 free tries. Marvin Akers missed one towards the latter part of the game to spoil the Wildcat record.

The Wildcats grabbed an early lead, but Tech fought back, and after seven minutes of play, it was 11 to 8, with Kentucky on top. Then the Jackets got going and grabbed a short lived 12-11 advantage, but it was the only time they were ahead.

Lewis sank one of the longest shots ever seen here in the final seconds of the first half to put his team within six points of the 'Cats, 24-30.

It rocked along in the second semester with Kentucky leading all the way, but never building up enough margin to take it easy. Kentucky was the better team, but Tech's fight was a great one and everybody was happy about it all.

ACTION UNDER KENTUCKY'S GOAL—When a Kentucky cager missed a shot last night, which was the exception more than the rule, two or three Tech Jackets were usually there to take the ball off the boards. Shown here, left to right, are Jake Lance, Boneyard Johnson and Carlton Lewis, all Tech players, and Akers, great Wildcat guard who has just tossed the ball goalward. The engineers outfought the Wildcats and turned in a fine performance, but couldn't match the Blue Grass boys at cracking down from far out in the court.

Suggs Takes Golf Title In an Extra-Hole Match

Defending Champion Turns Back Ella Mae Williams on 37th Green in Punta Gorda Tourney.

PUNTA GORDA, Fla., Jan. 20.—(AP)—Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., proved her championship caliber this afternoon as she won the annual Punta Gorda women's golf tournament for the second successive year.

She defeated plucky Ella Mae Williams, of Chicago, 1 up, in a thrilling-packed 37-hole contest.

Once during the morning round Miss Williams was three holes down, but refused to believe she was beaten and took the 14th, 15th and 16th by shooting par golf with machine-like precision. She lost the 17th and ended the first half of the match 1-1.

In the afternoon, Miss Suggs was 2 up on the challenger as she won the 540-yard 15th with a par 5. But Miss Williams won the next two holes and halved the 18th to run the match to an extra hole. The match ended when Miss Williams' second shot on the final hole went out of bounds. Even then she might have recovered except for the champion's phenomenal putting when precision was most needed. Miss Suggs holed a 25-yard putt from the top of a sloping green to provide a fitting climax to the spectacular shot-making.

Neither player was in top form.

Dusek on Card Here Tonight; Soldiers Free

Maybe a look at tonight's wrestling bouts at Sports Arena will help to teach American service men about hand-to-hand combat when the time comes to close quarters.

Anyway, Promoter Abe Simon says that all sailors, marines and soldiers will be admitted free to the three-hour program, which starts at 8:30.

Babe Dusek, colorful and dynamic youngest member of the famed brother wrestling team that includes Rudy, Ernie and Emil, will be the headliner on tonight's program.

Dusek is matched with Robert Young, highly regarded Pennsylvania 210-pounder in the 90-minute feature attraction.

Buck O'Malley, one of the several newcomers on this first show of the 1940 season, tackles Bad Boy Brown, big Chattanooga warrior in the off-hour semi-final.

In the first match, Soldier Thomas (he'll have plenty of support tonight) will tangle with Ed Pavalusko, making his debut here. Popular prices will prevail.

Rog Hornsby Voted Spot in Hall of Fame

'Rajah' Lead National League 6 Years in Row During Peak.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown is slowly becoming more populous—and not with ghosts, either.

Rogers Hornsby, alive and vigorous, was added today to the group of 26 immortals who already have been enshrined in baseball's birthplace.

The Rajah, now nearing 46 years of age, completed his active career in the major leagues only four seasons ago and now is manager of Fort Worth in the Texas League.

He was named on 182 ballots in a poll of 233 baseball writers conducted by Bill Brandt, publicity director of the National League, in the first election held since 1939 and thus caught up with the honor he missed by a small margin three years ago.

A three-fourths vote was needed to elect and although 72 different players were offered by the writers, each of whom was asked to list 10 nominees, Hornsby was the only star selected.

There was no question that the greatest right-handed hitter in baseball history had earned the accolade. In 23 years in the majors he carved an everlasting niche for himself. He played for five different clubs and managed four of them, led the National in batting for seven seasons, led in succession from 1922 and again in 1928, hit over 400 for three different years, and twice was named the most valuable player in the senior circuit.

MANY RECORDS.
He set many batting records that still stand for baseball's modern era, the foremost being his .424 average for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1924.

Hornsby broke into the majors with the Redbirds in 1915. Ten years later he became their manager and in 1926 he steered them to a world championship.

When he couldn't agree on a new contract he was traded to the New York Giants for Frank Frisch and a pitcher, then was shuttled to the Boston Braves, whom he managed for one season, and subsequently continued to the Chicago Cubs and back to St. Louis for stands with both the Cards and Browns.

Hornsby was the 14th star of the modern era chosen by the baseball writers. Those named previously were Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Cy Young, Grover Alexander, George Sisler, Eddie Collins, Willie Keeler and Lou Gehrig. All except Mathewson, Keeler and Gehrig are still alive.

The others in the Hall of Fame are Ban Johnson, founder of the American League; Morgan C. Bulkeley, first president of the National League; Connie Mack, John McGraw, George Wright, Henry Chadwick, Alexander Cartwright, Cap Anson, Charlie Radbourne, Al

Victory to Be Worth Thousands To Celtic-Eagle Winner Here

This Celtic-Eagle basketball collision at the city auditorium Tuesday night will be more than a battle for blood: it will be a game which will be worth thousands of dollars to the winning team.

Right now the Celtics are the kings of the walk in the south. For nearly a score of years they have made annual invasions of Dixie, playing all the big towns as well as the cross-roads, usually making the villages in the afternoon and early evening, and the cities at night. It has paid off. Davey Banks and Nat Hickey, veteran members of the Shamrocks, are wealthy men. The younger players are doing all right by themselves.

But now a black cloud has come up to darken southern skies for the Celtics. The Detroit Eagles, led by crafty Dutch Dehnert, want some of the gold that comes from playing basketball in Dixie. They are convinced that a victory over the Shamrocks will set them up, ace high as an attraction down here, replacing the Celtics as No. 1 drawing card. Dehnert always was a popular figure in these parts and he sees this as a golden opportunity. This will be a battle for keeps!

The Eagles will make sure they're ready. They'll take no

Tickets for Atlanta's greatest basketball classic, the battle of the World Champion Detroit Eagles and the Original New York Celtics which will be staged at the auditorium next Tuesday night, will be placed on sale this morning at Walworth & Hood, Reeder & McGaughey, Adam Hat Store and Bigtown Recreation Billiards.

This game will mark the first appearance in the south for the Eagles and the second time a professional game has been played in Georgia.

Boys' High Upsets Canton, 37-16, To Take Lead in 'Big Six' Loop

Dobbs Sparks Smithies to Victory Over G. M. A., 28-18.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

In the biggest upset since Humpty Dumpty fell off the wall, Boys' High tumbled Canton High out of a tie for the Big Six prep case league leadership and took over undisputed possession of the pinnacle themselves by completely routing the favored Greenies, 37 to 16, last night at Grady court.

In other league games, the Tech High Smithies set a torrid pace in the second half to down G. M. A., 28 to 18, after being held to a 9-9 stalemate at halftime, and Commercial High sharpshooters went berserk to subdue Marist, 52 to 24.

The momentum of the Boys' High football season seems to have carried over into the cage year, for sheer speed played a huge part as the Purple Hurricane completely outfought and outplayed a lacadaisical Greenie five, which had already trounced Tech High and Commercial.

BROOKS STARS.

Charles Brooks, a speedy guard who handles the ball well, raced in time and again to steal the ball, and Clint Castleberry, playing his first league game, and David Hambrick also were hawking the oval expertly. Injured Lester (Beanpole) Hughes got loose often enough to pace the scorers with 11 points, and Brooks was a shade back with 10.

Canton never was in the lead. The Purple held a 7-to-4 margin after the first quarter, and a 22-to-12 lead by halftime. In the third period the hustling charges of Coach Dwight Keith didn't allow the Cantonites a single point while they flipped in eight themselves. In the final stanza the Greenies managed to get only one field goal and two fouls, and the Purple continued to widen the gap. One observer who has followed the Canton five for 11 years said it was the upstart's worst beating during that period.

Johnny Dobbs was the big gun in the Tech High triumph as he looped in 11 of his 13 points in the second half. That made him high point man, and he further distinguished himself by holding Mike Hoben, elongated G. M. A. center, to 10 points, his lowest total this year. The 10 gave him 43 and the league scoring lead, however, since Bud Tipples, Canton's ace, made only seven, which left him trailing Hoben by five tallies.

CHAMBERS-HOBBY.

Swede Phillips' Smithies were playing without the services of James Lowe, who has quit school, and Jack Battles, but the fine work of Arthur Chambers, who garnered eight points via the long-shot route, and ball-hawk Tom Hobby, who dumped in five markers, more than made up for the loss. Hoben was the whole show for the Cadets.

David Eisenberg, with 17 points; Abe Rouse, with 14, and Wilson, with 13, ran wild for Rufus Godwin's Commercial to submerge Marist under a point deluge in an afternoon game at the Boys' Club. Jack Mays and Andy Martin netted 10 and nine points, respectively, to pace the losers. Perry Roberts was ding yoman's duty, too, before he suffered a severe shoulder injury just before the half. He accounted for seven points. In winning their first league game of the year, the Typists rocketed to a 39-to-22 lead by halftime and never were threatened thereafter.

In Memoriam.
 In loving memory of our darling daughter,
 Miss Ruth Mildred Thomas.
 Fondly loved and deeply mourned.
 Heart of our hearts, we miss you so
 Often, our darling, our tears will flow,
 Dimming your picture before our eyes.
 But never the one in our hearts that lies
 The stars seem dim as we whisper low,
 Our own darling baby, we miss you so.
